

Professional Investigations (Foundation)

Are you curious, detail-oriented, methodical, tactful, and discreet? Do you have excellent observation skills, an analytical mind and like to solve problems? Then becoming a Professional Investigator could be for you. Under New Zealand legislation, a Professional Investigator is 'any person who, in a paid capacity, is engaged in investigating people, and supplying information about that person'. Today, many law firms, insurance companies, corporates, government departments and private citizens rely on professional investigators to unearth facts, compile evidence, and contribute to the resolution of complex matters.

New Zealand's leading Professional Investigations course.

C4 has the only Professional Investigations programme in NZ that meets the needs of those entering the Professional Investigations workforce. Our programme is endorsed by the New Zealand Institute of Professional Investigators (NZIPI), the Private Security Personnel Licencing Authority (PSPLA), The Security Institute of New Zealand (SINZ) and the New Zealand Security Association (NZSA).

NZIPI states:

“C4 Group’s Professional Investigations course is endorsed by the New Zealand Institute of Professional Investigators (NZIPI) as providing basic skills and knowledge for those beginning a career in investigations. NZIPI will continue to monitor and evaluate this course against current practice and provide advice to ensure that the course reflects best practice in investigations.”

As the course is endorsed by the PSPLA it is accepted as training towards the PI category for a Certificate of Approval. We have designed our course to be consistent with the Australian Qualifications Certificate IV in Investigative Services as well as the United Kingdom Institute of Professional Investigators (IPI) Level III Professional Investigators’ course. It can also prepares the learner for the C4 Professional Investigations Certificate (Advanced) and further study for international professional certification with ASIS and ACFE. Ultimately it can lead to the New Zealand Diploma in Security Level 6 (Professional Investigations).
